Eighteenth Annual Catalogue of Bulbs, Plants, Shrubs and Seeds for Autumn Planting.

Horticultural Requisites and Poultry Supplies.

OTTAWA, SEPTEMBER 1ST, 1913.

WE take this opportunity of again thanking our numerous customers for their liberal patronage in the past eighteen years. During this time we have had the satisfaction of an annually recurring increase in our sale of Bulbs, locally and to all parts of the country. This, we are sure, is the result of offering only High Grade Bulbs. We handle Bulbs of the best quality in the different classes that money can buy, known and appreciated as Florists' Stock. While the prices may in some cases appear to be higher than some offered, it will be found that the best is the cheapest in the end.

All orders—large and small—will have our careful attention and prompt delivery.

Importing large numbers of the standard varieties we are prepared to make special prices to Florists and Dealers, who will find it to their advantage to get quotations, always bearing in mind that quality is our watchword.

At prices quoted by the dozen or under we shall forward Bulbs prepaid to any address in Canada. Bulbs catalogued at hundred rates and all other articles are sent forward at purchaser's expense.

Hints on Bulb Cultivation

A child can grow Bulbs successfully in the home. There is no secret about their cultivation, nothing requiring skill or long experience. No other culture will reward the grower so bountifully for the amount of money and labor expended than Flowering Bulbs. Either for house cultivation during the long months of winter or garden decoration in spring, nothing else will give the grower the pleasure and satisfaction that can be derived from a small outlay on Hyacinths, Tulips, Crocus, etc. A little common sense therefore and adhesion to the following simple hints and conditions will crown the efforts of the amateur with success.

The bulbs enumerated in this catalogue (particularly the Dutch and French) may—for the purposes of the amateur—be divided into three classes, viz.: 1. Those best adapted for house culture. 2. Those best adapted for the garden, and 3. A combination class—Those adapted for either the former modes. The first named class may be again divided into early and late blooming bulbs, the former being available at or before Christmas, and the latter from the middle of January until April or May. For Christmas blooming, only early Roman Hyacinths, Paper White Narcissus, Freesias, and Chinese Sacred Lilies should be planted. For general house culture the foregoing, together with the various Hyacinths, Polyanthus-Narcissus and Daffodils, may be successfully grown. While large numbers of Tulips are grown by florists for winter flowers, the average amateur may find them difficult to manage.

For house culture, pans are more effective than pots. A 5-inch pan holding one Dutch Hyacinth; a 6-inch pan holding five Roman or Dutch Pan Hyacinths, and for Narcissus larger pans should be used.

When planting use any light, moderately rich soil (avoiding any manure that is not thoroughly decomposed). We can supply a Special Compost at 40c. per bushel. Fill the pots or pans loosely almost to the top, press the bulbs into the soil so that only about one-quarter will show above the surface, strike the pot sharply to settle the soil, water thoroughly and place away in a cool dark situation. The ideal situation is outside (their native soil) covered with sufficient leaves or other material to prevent severe freezing. But as in the winter they are somewhat difficult to get at if treated thus, the next best place is a cool cellar. The bulbs being covered with three or four inches of leaves, sawdust or sand to exclude the air and retain moisture.

Examine them occasionally to see that they do not become dry, and keep them two or three months (the latter is the better) in the dark before bringing them into the light. As the leaves and flowers develop do not stint the water. Keep them cool even then and they will help to cheer the winter's gloom wonderfully. Freesias and Easter Lilies do not require to be started in the dark.

HYACINTHS GROWN IN GLASSES.

For glass culture the Highest Grade bulbs only should be used. Clean out your glasses thoroughly. If easily procured put in each glass a small nodule of charcoal (we will not attempt to explain why this should be done). Do not worry about the charcoal, however, for the bulbs will grow without it. Fill the glasses nearly full with soft water, and place the bulb so that its base nearly touches the water. The glasses may then be placed in a box in a cool, dark cellar, and covered with leaves as before mentioned. Look at them now and again and replenish the water if it is offensive, keeping it up to the same level, but not in direct contact with the bulbs or the latter may rot. Leave your glasses in this position for two months or more (until after January 1st), bringing them into the light to flower as they are wanted.

BULBS GROWN OUTSIDE.

Hyacinths, Tulips of all kinds, Crocus, and many varieties of Daffodils, are perfectly hardy outdoors. For outside culture (the Tulip being pre-eminently the most popular), plant thickly and deeply—six inches apart and six inches deep—except Crocus and other small bulbs, which should be planted at less depth—early as possible in October. Cover with a few inches of litter the end of November. Remove same first thing in spring and Nature will do the rest.
